

Leave and Attendance Policy

This Leave and Attendance Policy defines the rules governing employee working hours, attendance, and leave entitlements.

Employees are expected to adhere to standard working hours as defined by the organization. Regular attendance is essential for maintaining productivity and operational efficiency.

Employees must formally request leave through the approved HR system in advance, except in cases of emergency. Leave approval is subject to managerial discretion and business requirements.

Different types of leave may include casual leave, sick leave, earned leave, and public holidays as defined by company policy.

Excessive absenteeism without valid justification may result in disciplinary action.

Employees working remotely must ensure availability during working hours and maintain proper communication with their team.

Accurate attendance records must be maintained, and any discrepancies should be reported immediately to HR.

Failure to comply with attendance policies may affect performance evaluation and compensation.